“ Hey Baby Girl, its been 116 days without you. Some days are OK, but others still are not. I seem to be fine, and then a wave of sorrow slams into me out of nowhere and I want you back. I want to see you when I come home from work. The way you used to wait outside the closet while I changed and then would run off so I would chase you. I miss you sleeping on the floor on my side of the bed. Each night when I tossed and turned, I would see you curled up sleeping away. I miss you just being there. I have your ashes tucked away into the corner of the room where you always hung out. We adopted a couple of puppies in your honor. One of them, Ginger, reminds me of you. In fact, I like to think that she is you back in another doggie form. She likes to cuddle and give me kisses just like you did at that age. You would despise her just like you did Jet when he joined us. You would be glad to know that Ginger & GiGi chase and pester Jet constantly. He is getting a taste of his own medicine for when he did it to you. We have had them about a month and he still grumps at them. When I spend time with all of the dogs, we think of you. Jet and I go on long walks and we think of you. I usually say your name out loud and mention things that you would like. I don't know why I am writing this... as if you hear it... Just know that you are so very missed, so very loved and I think about you every day... I love you Daisy Mae... Daddy

“ Hey Baby Girl, It's been 47 days since we lost you to the Rainbow Bridge. We miss you so much!!! Jet has yet to eat his dog food since you left us. I have been cooking him chicken and hamburger each night to make sure he is getting something in his belly. I received the necklace I ordered for your ashes earlier this week. I will wear it on our walks to make sure you are with us too. I haven't brought myself to open your remains yet. I'm afraid I may lose some of you. You finally came to me in a dream two weeks ago. I was dreaming that I found a lost dog and brought him home to be with Jet. As soon as I opened the door, you were there, jumping off of the couch to greet me. I remember setting down the new dog and scooping you up. I felt so much love and comfort from you being there. I know it wasn't real, but it felt so real at the time. I smothered you with kisses and reminded you of how much we love you. When I woke up, I like to think that it was you really visiting me. There was no new dog, but Jetty was there giving me good morning kisses. He really misses you. He had most of his teeth removed last month but he has two left so he can still play "Monkey". He visits random dogs on our walk now. He misses having a co-dog with him to hand out. I found a feather on the floor last night in the bedroom. I heard somewhere that is a sign from doggies that make it safely to Heaven. I hope that is true. I put it in your new urn with some of your hair and a small lego puppy that resembles a much younger you. We miss you Dae Dae. We can't wait to see you on the other side. Daddy...

“ Good Morning Baby Girl. I thought I was ok and past the worst but this morning your loss was weighing heavily on my mind. I can't get it out of my head how scared you were at the vet. I wish I would have had someone come to our home to free you from your struggles. It kills me that you were so terrified at the end and I didn't do more to comfort you. I am so sorry baby girl. I miss you so much. Even though you are home again, your absence is so profound. I so wish we were still together. The world is a darker, sadder place right now. Jet is holding up but he eats very little. Every time we go into the bathroom, he jumps up and looks in the bathtub to see if you are in there getting a bath. I miss how you used to stand up on the tub edge when you knew it was your turn to have a bath. Even though you didn't like them. I hope you are happy and running free like you did when you were a puppy. I smile when I think of you bounding across the football field and following the track adjacent to it. You were just a white puff ball with only your head appearing occasionally as you ran and explored through the tall grass. You were so full of life and energy. I miss that walk so much. I love you Daisy Mae. I hope and pray Daddy gets to snuggle you again. See you later baby girl.

“ Missing you so much today baby girl. It's been 19 days without you and our house just isn't the same. I have been giving Jetty lots of attention and taking him on long walks and car rides. I let him sniff your remains box to show him that you are back home, but, I don't think he picked up on you. I hope you are with us in spirit every day like so many people believe. I say your name every day in the hopes that you know we are thinking about you. I love you Dae Dae! I hope when my time comes, that you are waiting to jump into my arms and we can make up for all the missed time. Hugs and Kisses Daisy Mae. Daddy loves you.

“ So Saturday you came home to us in a small bamboo box. It is so nice to have you back home. I have you placed in the corner of the bedroom on the corner desk. It's just above where you used to sleep every night. I showed your box to Jet but he didn't seem to pick up on your scent. He did eat a little more this week. I know he misses you greatly. We all do. I have taken Jet on a walk every night. I think he searches for your scent as we go along. We miss and love you baby girl.

“ I thought of you often yesterday baby girl. Jet had a better day but he is barely eating. He rode with me in the car a couple of times which I know was your favorite. Our family is really missing you sweetheart! I hope you are running and playing like you used to do at the football field.

“ Yesterday was a week without you. It was so beautiful outside and I know you would have loved just standing out there listening to the sounds of nature. We miss you so much Lil Daisy Mae. I hope you found some loved ones in Heaven to hang out with until we see you again. Jet misses you something awful. He sniffs by the back door every day hoping to catch your scent and hear the jingle of your collar. He is barely eating and appears so sad. He loves his sissy. Our lives are so different without you. We love you!!
