- “ In loving remembrance of Docked-err (Doctor Daves)
This handsome good boy transcended our earthly plane early this morning :/
- Hailing from Tulsa, Norman and Nashville, he enjoyed:
- * “trips” (no matter how short),
 - * agility performances (never quite made it mainstream),
 - * chasing squirrels (real, imagined, and dreamt),
 - * wrestling with his brother-from-another-mother Mu (cat), older sister (Roxanne), and other doggie roomies over the years (and territorial peeing of course - even indoors)
 - * wide open country spaces (chasing the lawnmower),
 - * dirt/grass exfoliation (who doesn't?),
 - * Eating green vegetables (weirdo),
 - * Licking dishes cleaner than the dishwasher (begging under the table/at the prep counter),
 - * Having ZERO sense of others' personal-space bubble (but getting annoyed if HIS was intruded upon),
 - * Being a complete spaz for several days after his semi-annual coat shearing,
 - * the “never-been-kissed” lifestyle (poor guy),
 - * Sitting/laying awkwardly in tight spaces/corners,
 - * Sitting like a human in the car,
 - * Selective hearing (unless his name was barely whispered for treats),
 - * Greeting us in the garage/at bottom of the stairs when we get home,
 - * Being the first one up/down the stairs (regardless how many things/humans we were carrying),
 - * toys, bones and balls galore,
 - * etc, etc, etc, etc, etching .

This morning's beautiful sunrise seemed to hint that he's reunited with Mom and his sister, eating all the table scraps he can handle, going on infinite trips, and finally catching those teasing squirrels,
