“ Hi sweet boy, it's mom.
I am missing you a lot today. I dreamed of you last night and I know you come and check of me. I had a candle holder made that looks like you. I love and miss you so much.

“ Yesterday Skylar and I lost our dear boy Gunner. Last month he was diagnosed with congestive heart failure. His vet informed us that he had a large heart. He was on medication but sadly it did not give him the time that we had originally hoped.

For those who had the absolute pleasure of knowing Gunner you know how he just had a way about him. He put a smile on everyone's face. With his silly expressions, sloppy kisses and unwavering love for everyone.

I had the privilege of raising him from 5 weeks old to his almost 9th birthday. He was far more than just a dog, he was truly family and my life is forever changed by him. He loved me when I truly felt unloveable and saw me through so many stages and seasons of life.

We traveled the world together. Seeing many states and sniffing many flowers along the way. No variation or amount of words can describe just how much he meant to me.

Gunner, my sweet best boy. You have changed me for the better. I will miss you forever and I cannot wait until we get to meet and snuggle again. Your spirit and sunshine will carry out longer than your earthly body would let you. Thank you for letting us be your parents. At the end of it all...your heart was so big because it was just full of love. Rest easy Gman, our perfect son.

We love you.
