“ It’s been a month since we have been able to hold you. We miss feeling your warmth, the touch of your sweet nose on our skin, your breathe on our faces when we got “sugars” and your comforting presence. It doesn’t get easier, each day has its struggles. We love and miss you a lot baby girl. Keep watch over us little girl and play hard. Meet us in the light when it’s time. 🖤❤️🐾

“ It’s been almost a month and it never gets easier. When I come in from work I look to your spot on the couch and see you there. I miss running to you and holding you because you were so excited for us to be home. I see things all over our house and I am reminded of our time together as a happy little family. It’s just not the same baby girl, we miss you so much! I know you are looking over us each and everyday. Until we are able to be with you again you play a lot and have the best time with those ears flying behind your head as your run around! Meet us in the light when it’s time baby we love and miss you so much! 🌈🐾❤️🖤
