“ I have many, many memories of Miss Jenny so I'll just give a few. The day Jenny came home Andy tried pinning her up on the back porch & whatever it was he was using was just knee high & he just couldn't keep her in that pin. As his frustration was growing trying to keep her in he'd notice she was out again and he's like how in the hell is that puppy getting out? LOL I said Andy, she's just hopping over the little fence cause want's to explore, run, and play with Blue who of course still didn't want anything to do with her.

Fast forward a few months and Blue was definitely a bit more cocky because he was the boss man teaching this goofy puppy (that was already twice his size) and showing her all the ropes on how things went but he'd get on to her and she'd hunker down and be devastated while you could see his head swelling.

The several emergency vet visits and surgeries that little miss clumsy found herself in and they where pretty bad injuries. But that was Jenny, just a clumsy girl but so so very sweet and caring. She love'd seeing my little dogs every single time we came down. She always looked out for them and never, ever tried hurting them. But something that girl loves MORE than anything and would just be obsessed with, kids. Jenny love, love, loved the little kids when they would come out. She would be glued to their side following them everywhere and just couldn't get enough of them. She'd even ignore her mom and dad when they would call her she was absolutely obsessed with the little boys. I will deeply miss Jenny Marie Corcongill, LOL she knows what it means.

“ Jenny was five weeks old when she came to live with us. She was the best protective watch dog without aggression to anyone. She loved children and was so excited to see them. We love her and always will. Riding in the Kubota, running in the fields, digging for gofers and swimming in the ponds was so exciting for her. She always looked back to make sure we were watching her. We miss our Jenny. Her buddy Shep is lost without her.
