“Grieving a pet is a strange kind of pain. There’s no funeral, no formal goodbye, no closure. Just an empty bed and a thousand memories you weren’t ready to stop making. People who’ve never loved an animal like family will never get it—and that’s fine. But for the rest of us? We know that losing a pet feels like losing a part of our soul that had fur and four legs and looked at us like we were their whole world.

We will forever miss you. Such a short life, but so much spunk, love and memories. We are heartbroken.
