“ There are no words that could describe the feelings I currently hold in my heart. Virgil you came into my life when I needed you the most, when things felt dark and confusing for me. When life seemed entirely hopeless. I knew from the moment I saw you that I was going to be okay. That I had to make sure you would be okay, that you would feel safe and loved. You became my whole world. My little ray of sunshine.

You showed me that despite all things, there is happiness to be found even at my lowest. That it's the little things that truly make life worth it. I wanted you to be there with me when I finally figured out what to do with my life, where to go. But I suppose deep down you knew I would be okay on my own without you.

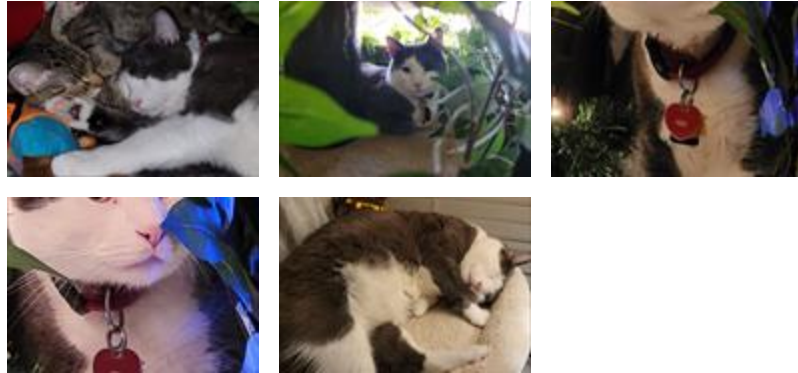

I don't know what I'm going to do now that you're gone. But I know I have to push on and figure out the rest of my life. If not for me, at least for you.

Thank you Virgil for coming into my life. I'll always love you, forever and always.
